Gmail Secrets 2020

Advanced User Tips and Tricks

Send emails that self-destruct after a certain amount of time

With the latest version of Gmail, you can send emails that will automatically erase themselves out of existence after some amount of time. They don't allow recipients to forward them to anyone else, either, so they're perfect for when you need to send super-secure emails that are for the recipient's eyes only. To send a self-destructing email, start by composing a new message. Next, look at the row of icons near the "Send" button and find the one that looks like a padlock with a clock on it. That icon toggles "confidential mode" on or off.

Send an email that requires recipients to go through 2-step verification to read.

For an even deeper level of security, you can use "confidential mode" to enable 2-step verification on emails you send. This means that your recipient must enter a code sent via SMS to their phone in order to open the email.

Grant someone else access to your Gmail account without revealing your Gmail password.

If you need to grant Gmail access to someone else, you can do so by delegating account access. This is useful if you need to give your assistant access to your account, or if you're planning on being out of the office for an extended amount of time). The process to set up and remove account delegates can be found here.

Automatically open your next email.

If you want to speed up the process of going through your inbox in the morning, you can do so by enabling “Auto-advance” within the Settings area, in the “Advanced” tab. Whenever you archive, mute, or delete an email, it’ll automatically display the next email in your inbox. This is one of those Gmail tips that doesn’t seem to save a lot of time individually, but over the course of hundreds or thousands of emails, the time savings can quickly add up.

Preview Emails in a Pane

Most desktop email programs like Outlook offer a preview—you click the message in a list and see it in another pane of the window. In Gmail, turn this on under Settings > Inbox > Reading pane > Enable reading pane. Then scroll down and click Save changes. Your browser window will refresh, and when it loads, you'll see a four-line drop-down menu on the top right. Click it to select how you want to preview your messages: below your email (horizontal split) or to the right (vertical split). When there's no message selected, the pane provides a preview of how much space your messages are using out of your allotted space.
